PASS MAMMOGRAPHY QUALITY STANDARDS ACT

(Ms. NORTON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks and include therein extraneous material.)

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, great strides have been made in concurring breast cancer. Much of this progress is due to the work of the Congress in general and the bipartisan Congressional Women's Caucus in particular. Tamoxifen, a new drug now promises to prevent and cure breast cancer.

One of the seven must-pass bills of the bipartisan Congressional Women's Caucus this year is the reauthorization of the Mammography Quality Standards Act to assure correct and safe mammograms. This bill has passed unanimously in the Senate. We cannot go home without doing the same here. American women and families deserve no less.

Mr. Speaker, I include for the record the testimony from the Women's Caucus hearing on tamoxifen.

NEW STUDY ON EDUCATION IN AMERICA SHOWS NO IMPROVE- MENT FOR OUR CHILDREN

(Mr. GUTKNECHT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to talk about education here in the United States.

For the past year, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. HOEKSTRA), who is the chairman of the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations of the Committee on Education and the Workforce, has been conducting hearings all across the United States. They have been to 22 different cities. They have been to large cities, they have been to small towns, and they have been to rural communities. They visited 26 different educational institutions. They have had 200 expert witnesses, and they have talked about what is happening in education today.

They are going to be coming out very soon with a report, and I invite all of my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to get a copy of this report, because they have spent an awful lot of time and a certain amount of taxpayers' dollars to find out what is really happening in education in America today.

Their findings are somewhat troubling. They find, for example, that there has been no real improvement in education in America since the report entitled "A Nation At Risk." They found that Washington programs have done nothing to improve children's education; and, finally, they have determined that this is not acceptable to the Congress and certainly is not acceptable to the American people.

So what do we have to do? An important thing about this report also is it has recommendations. We must focus on children by strengthening the role of parents. Now, that should not surprise many parents. We must restore local control by getting Washington out of the way. We must get dollars into the classroom instead of losing them to the bureaucracy; and, finally, and most importantly, we must emphasize basic academics rather than social experimentation.

Mr. Speaker, I hope Members will get a copy of this report, and I hope they will all read it. I include for the RECORD a copy of same.
